Be the Playmaker

Regista is a studio-grade midrange shaper built on one idea: the middle decides everything. It gives you precise control over body, clarity, and presence. You choose the zone, set the width, and apply the drive. The guitar lands exactly where it should.

Console Move

Regista follows the logic of a recording console. The sweep is tuned to human hearing, the ranges sit on familiar anchor points, and Shape controls width like a true parametric mid. Drive adds authority, so each adjustment feels like placing the guitar exactly where it belongs.

Holding the Line

When a guitar needs to feel louder without actually getting louder, Regista steps in. It gives the sound enough weight, focus, and presence to hold its ground in a mix, without pushing level or changing character.

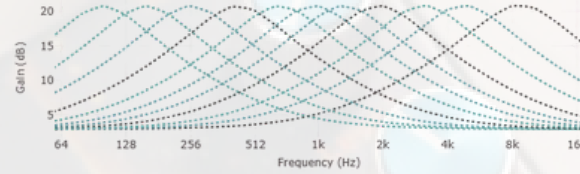

Order in the Middle

Switch Regista on and the guitar snaps into focus. Low zones bring structure and mass. The centre opens a vocal, grounded voice. Higher zones add definition and edge. Each move feels connected, because the midrange reveals itself as a space you navigate, not a knob you twist.

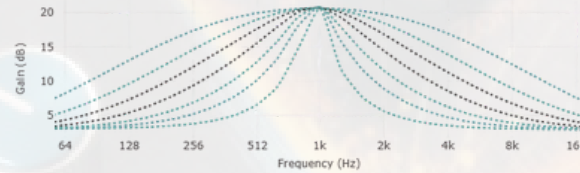

Small Moves, Clear Results

Regista is easy to dial in. Set the zone, choose the width, and add drive until the part settles. Wide shapes blend naturally. Narrow shapes bring focus and direction. Each adjustment does exactly what you expect, making it simple to place the guitar where it belongs.

Zone

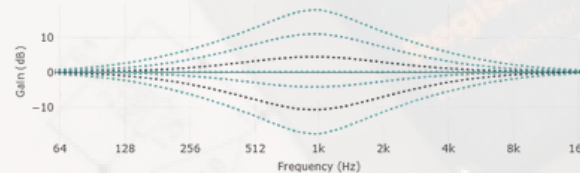

Shape

Studio on Your Board

The circuit follows a console mindset from start to finish. A clean foundation feeds a focused mid engine. Drive builds authority without strain. Zone follows perception, not numbers. Shape controls focus with a true parametric band. The result stays composed, whether you lean gentle or go bold.

Drive

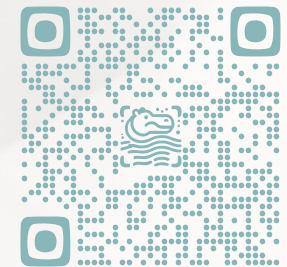

Final Decisions Live Late

Regista shines near the end of the chain, where it can stay on to shape the whole rig or step in to lift a part forward. It adds body to mid-focused drives, clarifies warm distortions, and tightens complex gain structures. Wherever it sits, its role stays the same: organise the sound before it reaches the amp.

Quiet Control

A regista controls the game from the centre. He reads the moment, chooses the right space, and sets everything else in motion. This pedal was built with the same goal. Regista does not shout. It guides, balances, and brings intention to the middle, where everything is decided.
